1. The firm "Jugonaftha", which receives and stores naphtha and gasoline imported to Yugoslavia, is located near Sustjegan, across from Mokosica. Before World War II there were six tanks for storing naphtha and gasoline at this location but during the war one of the tanks was damaged beyond repair. It was removed after the war and the other five tanks were reconditioned. Three tanks have a capacity of 100 wagons each, and two tanks have a capacity of 80 wagons each: a total of 460 wagons, or 4,600 tons, in all.
2. Dusan Pejnovic, a Communist Party member, is Director of the firm. Fani Danjan is the bookkeeper; a non-Communist. Luka Lazibat, an old Communist, is Inspector of Work. Three officials and about 25 workers are employed, and the firm has its own guard of about 15 men who are members of the industrial militia.
3. Most of the naphtha and gasoline are imported from Bari, Italy. A new electro-automatic pump for loading and unloading fuels has been installed. Finished products are transported into the interior of the country by tank-wagon, while raw products are transported to the refinery in Fiume by boat.
